

Training Materials for Title IX Personnel

Required Training Materials

Title IX requires that all individuals involved in the grievance process, including, but not necessarily limited to, the Title IX Coordinators, investigators, decision makers, and any person who facilitates an informal resolution process, receive training on the following areas:

- The definition of sexual harassment;
- The scope of the education program or activity;
- How to conduct an investigation and grievance process, including hearings, appeals, and informal resolution processes; and
- How to serve impartially, including by avoiding prejudgment of the facts at issue, conflicts of interest, and bias.

Outsourced Process

Mayville State University may outsource investigations to the University of North Dakota's Civil Rights & Title IX Office and will outsource decision making to an Administrative Law Judge.

Investigator Training

Investigators must also be trained on issues of relevance to create an investigative report that fairly summarizes relevant evidence.

Advisor Training

Advisors assigned by the University will receive training regarding their role in the process. Advisors are not expected or required to have any specific level of training or experience.

Archived Content: Title IX Training Materials

Title IX also requires that Mayville State post its training materials on its website. Below are materials used to train the Title IX Coordinators, internal investigators, and those involved in the informal resolution process over the past seven years. This list will be updated periodically, as appropriate.

The material below is considered archived content and may not be fully compliant with WCAG 2.1 AA guidelines. You may request an accessible version of the content below by contacting the Title IX Coordinators listed below.
